Abstract: Chinese characters were randomly selected and named as 0061-0075 characters, and they were translated on Korean pronunciation basis. The translation on the pronunciation was ridiculous, and it was sometimes sincere, and sometimes it was full of ill will, and sometimes it is easy to find the Korean pronunciation on the Chinese character. For example, the original meaning of Tchug(祝) is: "It is not easy and is disgusting (시(示) 구(구) 인(兄) 口 = 人) →Sil eun, 싫은) to congratulate a prosperous person". As another example, the original meaning of Bo (寶) is: "It is really better if my child beat other child than if my child were beaten by other child! (myeon(安) 女(女) 玉(玉) 瓶(瓶) = Pae bu og myeon →Pae bulgo o myeon, 패불고 오면). As the third example, the original meaning of Su(守) is: "If there is a way in order to protect my home, I can do the difficult and miraculous thing. Even I will pick a hook and with it I will break the falling stone from the heaven! (Galgoli(簡) 友(十) 寸(守) →Galgolilo Byeolddongyeol myeon!, 갈고리로 별똥을 열면!). As the fourth example, the original meaning of Dan (短) is: 'To wither (시(矢) du (豆) → Si deun, 시든). From this research it is easily known that Chinese characters were produced by ancient Korean people. It was the people of Shang, the second country of Old China period.

Keywords: Chinese characters (0061-0075), translated on Korean pronunciation, Shang, the second country of Old China period, ancient Korean people.

INTRODUCTION

It is written that there are several differences between Chinese people and Korean people [1]. It is well known that Chinese characters originated from the Chinese people [2]. But the present researchers found that Chinese characters can be translated on Korean pronunciation [3]. The researchers have studied the translation of Tcheonzamun (The thousand character essay), and they found that Tcheonzamun poem is composed of Korean words [4]. So the researchers tried to do the translating work for other Chinese characters.

MATERIALS AND METHODS

Chinese characters were randomly selected and named as 0061-0075 characters, and they were translated on Korean pronunciation basis.
