Abstract: French missionary Dallet (1874) wrote in his book that there are many different things between Chinese culture and Korean culture, and the origin of Korea is not China. It is strange that some Persian words and Korean words sound similar or same (Park et al., 2019; Kim and Park, 2022). The two regions (One is Iran and Afghanistan etc., the other is Korea) locate distantly. The object of this research is to know if they are similar or they are same origin, Persian language and Korean language. In this time, the present researcher took eight Persian words randomly, and compared them with Korean words. The researcher used a Dictionary of Persian/French and French/Persian (Bau, 2008). The present researcher used the method of pronunciation of Korean and Persian words. The title is 'Are they similar or are they same origin, Persian language and Korean language? (0196-0203)'. The results obtained is described as follows. <number Persian word (its meaning) Korean word (its meaning in English)>. 0196 Amir al muminin (Commander of the believer) Himeul-modu-mitneun (to believe in all of the power). 0197 Ashti kardan (to reconcile) Ashipta (I am sorry to hear that ~). 0198 Edde (pretension) Eoddae? (How do you feel about that?). 0199 Adam e kefoy botayn e tshap (the person is not normal in the capability of the heart or of the head.) Eo-dum e keob-bo botaegi en tshaet (When it is dark, the person becomes coward. When it is time to help somebody, the person dislikes to look at the somebody who is in difficulty.). 0200 Badan (the body) Badeun (the thing received, it indicates the body). 0201 Dost Doshtan (to love) Duliseo Oson Doson (to do something friendly with two persons). 0202 Rang e but (shiny, very bright) Hang-a-ri e but (to apply painting brush to the porcelain in order to make it to be shiny.). 0203 Takra (to be in fully grown-up) Ta-keora (You, grow up in the full scale!). The research from this study showed that there are close relation between the two languages.

INTRODUCTION

French missionary Dallet (1874) wrote in his book that there are many different things between Chinese culture and Korean culture, and the origin of Korea is not China. It is strange that some Persian words and Korean words sound similar or same (Park et al., 2019; Kim and Park, 2022). The two regions (Iran and Afghanistan etc., Korea) locate distantly. The object of this research is to know if they are similar or they are same origin, Persian language and Korean language.

METHODS AND MATERIALS

In this time, the present researcher took eight Persian words randomly, and compared them with Korean words. The researcher used a Dictionary of Persian/French and French/Persian (Bau, 2008). The present researcher used the method of pronunciation of Korean and Persian words.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

The title is 'Are they similar or are they same origin, Persian language and Korean language? (0196-0203)'. The results obtained is described as follows.

<number Persian word (its meaning)	Korean word (its meaning in English)>
0196 Amir al muminin (Commander of the believer)	Himeul-modu-mitneun (to believe in all of the power).
0197 Ashti kardan (to reconcile)	Ashipta (I am sorry to hear that ~)
0198 Edde (pretension)	Eoddae? (How do you feel about that?)
0199 Adam e kefoy botayn e tshap (the person is not normal in the capability of the heart or of the head.)	Eo-dum e keob-bo botaegi en tshaet (When it is dark, the person becomes coward. When it is time to help somebody, the person dislikes to look at the somebody who is in difficulty.)
0200 Badan (the body)	Badeun (the thing received, it indicates the body)
0201 Dost Doshtan (to love)	Duliseo Oson Doson (to do something friendly with two persons)
0202 Rang e but (shiny, very bright)	Hang-a-ri e but (to apply painting brush to the porcelain in order to make it to be shiny.)
0203 Takra (to be in fully grown-up)	Ta-keora (You, grow up in the full scale!)

The research from this study showed that there are close relation between the two languages.
